Lindgren quits as teacher

In the wake of his sudden resignation as Livermore police chief, Ron Lindgren has quit his part-time teaching positions with the Chabot College Valley Campus and the Livermore school district.

The Chabot resignation came midway in the academic quarter and dean Dr. Barbara Mertes said yesterday Lindgren's class, "Administration of Justice," would be reassigned. Livermore Valley Unified School District superintendent Leo Croce said Lindgren resigned at mid-semester after completing the fall term at Livermore High School. He was slated to teach a law enforcement class at Granada High School spring semester.

School officials emphasized Lindgren's resignation was de.ision and they - had been pleased with his work.

"He felt that under the circumstances it would be hard to talk about community and police relations," said Croce.

Lindgren announced his resignation from the police department Jan. 28 after city manager Bill Parness ordered a private investigation of "departmental problems." Lindgren retained legal counsel after the Alameda County district attorney's office said it was reviewing results of the investigation and the controversy around it.

He had served as police chief since 1972 and began with Chabot College that year. He joined the LVUSD in 1973.

San Ramon's old red barn' is sold

Long range plans call for a possible cultural center here.

SAN RAMON — The Dublin San Ramon Services District (DSRSD) has received title to the "Red Barn" property located at the east end of Alcosta Boulevard.

Roughly $135,000 was paid to Boise Cascade for the seven-acre site, according to Waide Egener. He is DSRSD Parks Facilities Coordinator.

The title was received Monday, he reported. Negotiations for the property began in November.

DSRSD General Manager Paul Ryan said the district proposes to use the land and buildings for community related projects.

He indicated it would be a while before any firm plans were implemented. Meanwhile, DSRSD is posting "no trespassing" signs, setting up lighting and anti-vandalism measures, Ryan said.

"It will take a while to clean up the property; especially the stable area," he added.

There are two red barns, assorted sheds and a house on the property. DSRSD hopes to utilize some of the buildings if they can be renovated.

Egener said the house might be useable for small grouP meetings.

The former tenant of the red barn property disputed the Boise Cascade sale to the district, according to Egener. He said it was his understanding the tenant claimed to have made a higher offer than DSRSD for the land and was upset because Boise Cascade accepted the district offer.

The tenant indicated he would sue the district, Egener reported. Grounds for the lawsuit were never clarified, he added.

Egener said he had never heard of the tenant quoting the amount of money offered to Boise Cascade.

"And Boise Cascade never indicated they had received a bona fide offer," he continued.

Egener said he thought Boise Cascade, or any other seller, has the right to accept whichever offer they deem best under the particular circumstances.

Since the sale, no one has heard any more from the former tenant, district officials said.

Ryan said the land was purchased at the recommendation of Jack Buktenica, landscape architect from Palo Alto.

Buktenica was hired by DSRSD as a parks and recreation consultant in conjunction with DSRSD's 10-year parks and recreation master plan study. DSRSD directors approved Buktenica's recommendation.

Ryan said the recommendation was based on the fact DSRSD needed more facilities. The barn property was pointed out as an ideal location to put in more facilities.

Recycling center has no place to go

Carter chats on Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Wednesday night he would not hesitate to send U.S. troops to defend the Panama Canal — "and I have no doubt that even in sustained combat we would be successful."

But Carter said the treaty to yield control of the waterway to Panama in the year 2000 would diminish the risk of any need for armed intervention to defend it.

Urging public support for Senate ratification of the Panama Canal treaty, Carter's firm pledge confronted one of the major points raised by opponents who complain that the pact does not spell out American defense rights.

DUBLIN — The Dublin Recycling Center on Dublin Boulevard next to Foremost is searching for another location since their landlord, Murray School District, plans to sell the property.

Althea Miller, the center's sales coordinator, said the school district promised to give the center 30 days to vacate the site after the land is sold.

A Murray School District spokesman said "there was no buyer at this time."

The Dublin San Ramon Services District (DSRSD) agreed to help seek a new location for the recycling center. They wrote the Commanding Officer, John T. Corral, at Camp Parks asking if space would be available at the camp. According to a DSRSD spokesperson, the reply was "no" since a recycling center would not be considered "compatible" with Camp Parks operations.

'Let's face it — it's not a beautification project'

The traffic flow of people bringing in ll materials for recycling might interfere with weekend Army Reserve maneuvers, the DSRSD spokesperson reported.

DSRSD had contemplated buying the site to expand their Dublin Sports Ground facility but had decided against the purchase, according to DSRSD Parks Facilities Coordinator Waide Egener.

Miller said whoever donated a new site could declare it as a tax deduction. The center needs a lot at least 100x150 feet, she added.

Other qualifications require easy access but out of the mainstream.

"We work hard to keep the center as neat as possible but let's face it, a recycling center is not a beautification project."

The recycling center is a non-profit organization. Monies collected from the operation are turned back to non-profit community organizations who volunteer their help at the center, Miller explained.

"After transportation fees are taken out, 95 per cent of money generated from the sale of recycled materials is given to the group or groups that helped that day. The other five per cent goes back to the center to pay for center improvement.

The purpose of the center is to help conserve energy through recycling plus raise money for non-profit, local organizations.

Last year, roughly $23,000 was turned back into the community from money raised through the recycling center, Miller said.

The Center is open Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Acceptable materials include glass and bottles (separate clear glass from colored glass), newspapers (no magazines), steel, aluminum and bimetal cans (clean, remove labels and flatten). Oil may be taken to the Union 76 Station on Santa Rita Road and Stanley Boulevard.

Newspapers need not be bundled.

For further information, call Miller at 828-1448.

Jobs available for veterans

— Job opportunities for veterans are currently available through Contra Costa County Comprehensive Employment Training Act programs.

Judy Ann Miller, Manpower director, said that 35 percent of all CETA jobs will go to veterans.

She added that agencies employing CETA workers will be advertising the jobs in local newspapers or listing them at the stated Employment Development Division office.

Jobs include maintenance workers, bookkeeper aides, secretaries and receptionists.

Schools' input meet off

The Amador/Pleasanton school administrators "input" meeting scheduled this evening has been cancelled.

School administrators have told the boards that they would prefer to set forth in writing at a later date job criteria and personal qualifications they would like to see in the districts' new superintendent. These statements will be made public when completed, the district says.

Ridge plan before board

Alameda County supervisors again will discuss Carl Nipper's proposed hilltop development near Sunol at 10:30 a.m. today in their chambers at 1221 Oak St.

Nipper wants aa a 120 units, but the planning commission recommends 92 units.

Zone 7's Concannon resigns from board

Livermore — Joseph S. Concannon Jr' has resigned from the board of directors of Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, it was announced last night.

Concannon, president of Concannon Vineyards in Livermore, submitted a letter of resignation to the Zone 7 board January 25.

Board chairman Gib Marguth announced the resignation at the beginning of a special meeting on next year's budget.

Concannon sited poor health as the reason for absences from recent board and committee meetings. "I feel that it is only fair to the board tnat each director play an active role in the affairs of the zone when occupying such a position."

"It has been a delight working with you, the directors, and an outstanding staff for Zone 7," he wrote, wishing his collegues best wishes for the future.

They need help to get help

Livermore Jaycees are seeking some $35,000 worth of help from the community to finish a two-year project at the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch.

The group just received word that it has been granted $30,000 of Housing and Community Development funds to complete their overhaul of the Ranch's Building Nine. But, in a classic "Catch 22" situation, they won't receive the $30,000 until they come up with another $35,000 of donated labor, materials and funds.

Jaycees are appealing to local groups and individuals — especially those in the building trade — to help them finish the renovation of a run-down building into a youth Crisis and Outreach Center.

Three options if petitions valid

There could be another pipeline ballot

PLEASANTON — CARD members yesterday submitted a box of signed petitions to the Valley's water management agency in hopes of forcing another vote on the sewage export pipeline.

Ken Scheidig, legal counsel for the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA), will have 30 days in which to get the signatures counted. If more than 4,506 valid signatures are certified, the issue might qualify for the June 6 primary ballot.

The LAVWMA board of directors, composed of two representatives each from Livermore, Pleasanton and the Dublin - San Ramon Services District, will have three options if the petitions contain the required number of signatures:

★ The board could reject the initiative attempt claiming it is directed at an administrative action rather than a policy decision.

★ Directors could agree to put the measure on the June ballot.

★ Or, the board could accept the move outright. This would stop progress on the project since a vote of the people would first be required.

Valley voters defeated a larger but similar project in November, 1976 by a 55 to 45 percent tally. LAVWMA later amended its charter, a joint powers agreeement, so that voter approval was not required for a project costing more than $1.5 million locally or more than 13 million gallons per day of capacity.

CARD's initiative seeks to strike down that amendment, again requiring a Valley vote if those limits were to be exceeded.

The project, a $28 million, 31-mile pipeline with a capacity of 15.62 mgd that would attach to the south ceunty "super-sewer" project and dump effluent into San Francisco Bay, has been approved for federal and state grant funding of 87.5 percent.

Locally bonds will be issued in the amount of $4.2 million to pay the Valley's 12.5 percent of project costs.

Critics of the project have charged that once the project is completed, unused capacity in the pipeline would be used to support large residential developments. LAVWMA directors have stated that several contractual restrictions plus the agency's charter would prohibit such a move. — by Bill Cauble

Jaycees lead youth ranch renovation drive

Livermore Jaycees are appealing to local community groups and professionals for $35,000 worth of labor, materials and donations needed to complete a two-year renovation project at the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch.

The group $30,000 from a Housing and Community Development Fund grant, which came from both the city of Livermore and Alameda County. However, to receive that money, the Jaycees must round up $35,000 worth of donated labor and materials by August 1 — to prove they are capable of completing the project, which was estimated to cost about $65,000, according to Karen Brown of the Jaycee Wives.

Work on renovation of the Ranch's Building Nine began last January, when Jaycees and their wives, as well as many community groups, donated labor and materials to begin transforming the run-down building into a Crisis and Outreach Center. The Center, when finished, would house teenagers and children with family problems, probation problems, and battered or abused teenagers who may have been facing serious trouble at home.

In one year's time, the Jaycees have completed some $9000 worth of work with the help of volunteers, including completly tearing out the insides of the building to help bring the structure up to building codes, according to Roger Johnson, Jaycee vice-president of community involvement.

The Jaycee Wives were awarded a Mainstream grant from the national Jaycee organization. That $2000, received in December 1976, was used to fund projects and get the renovation going, according to Karen Brown.

Jaycees received word this month that they would receive county and city funds, she said.

Brown, who is on the Buenas Vidas Board of Directors, says that the Jaycees originally applied for $65,000 of HCD funds to complete the renovation. Livermore has given the group 44 percent or $23,135 of that request — since it is estimated that 44 percent of youths served by the facility would be from the city, Brown said.

The county supplied 10.6 percent of the $65,000, or $6,875, estimating that that percentage of county youths from unincorporated county areas would be served by the facility, she added.

"It's the first time that the county has ever funded this kind of project," Brown said.

The group, however, is still faced with what Roger Johnson calls the "bureaucratic Catch 22" — in order to get the $30,000, they must make up the rest of the estimate.

"We're trying to utilize the community and make it a community project," says Dan Brown of the Jaycees. "We need people with expertise, especially those in the building trades," he added, to help with the technical aspects of renovating the building. But technical knowledge isn't the only criteria, he said.

"Mostly, we need enthusiasm." Local church groups, clubs and individuals are welcome to donate funds, materials or labor to the renovation, he added.

The entire project, says Johnson, will be completed "right down to the furniture" and target date is December 1978. The goal, he says, is to "preserve the facade" of the old nurses' home, but to make it "structural and sound."

In order to accomplish that, adds Johnson, the Jaycees and other groups have held some 12 work parties, all day events in which work would be done, usually on a Saturday.

In a building which was abandoned for some 20 years, he said, the volunteers "tore the insides out, and stripped it of all the plaster," as well as taking on some difficult work of removing tons of debris. With 1800 hours of volunteer hours donated, the basic structure, which is strong, still stands and now the task is to re-build the insides, he added.

Those interested in assisting the Jaycees and Jaycees Wives with the project can attend a Feb. 11 work party from 8 a.m. to about 3 p.m., in which the building will be cleared of all debris and readied for final work.

Those interested in the project — whether clubs, individiauals or private organizations — can call the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch at 455-1179.

Tax measure poses threat to schools

PLEASANTON — School Supt. Bruce Newlin last night suggested the Pleasanton school board consider having two 1978-79 budgets worked up as the districts could lose some $2 million in revenues if the Jarvis tax initiative is approved in June.

Pleasanton trustees approved $11,833 in projects and an application that would federally underwrite a health education program.

The Title IV-B projects recommended included $3,187 for district health education, 1,500 each for the Harvest Park authors' program and a Walnut Grove reading lab, and $1,380 for Pleasanton industrial arts.

The federal Title IV-C application, if accepted, would provide $50,000 to implement the Comprehensive Articulated Health Education project. The application was prepared by Charlotte Angel and Carol Buletza of the district.

Trustees also heard the first reading of a complaint procedure for polcies and regulations not covered under a collective bargaining agreement for classified employees. Some wording changes were suggested.

The board also announced that interviewing of consultants in the superintendent search process will begin February 13.

Guilty plea made on drug charge

LIVERMORE — Donald D. Leite, 20, of Livermore pleaded guilty yesterday to a reduced charge of possession of dangerous drugs in Livermore Municipal Court.

Judge John A. Lewis dismissed two felony counts of possession of drugs for sale and possession of marijuana for sale and set Feb. 15 for sentencing.

Leite and three other Livermore residents were arrested Dec. 14 in an action by the combined Tri-Valley Drug Task Force. Yesterday's hearing was originally slated as a preliminary hearing to determine if the matter belonged in Superior Court.

Army woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising recruitment costs and a shrinking pool of eligible manpower may spell trouble for the volunteer army into the 1980s, say Pentagon spokesmen.

Five years after Richard M. Nixon ended the draft, it costs more than four times what it did to draft men for the armed services in the mid-1970s.

Recruiters are spending $500 million annually to keep the armed forces up to the 2.1 million level mandated by Congress. That came to $1,200 for each of the 411,000 enlistees last year, the Pentagon says, including a system of bonuses to encourage volunteers and salaries for the recruiters.

New Midwest storm threat

A new storm system threatened the snow-tortured Midwest with more snow today. Kentucky was under a statewide travelers advisory.

The storm was expected to dump up to four inches of snow in Kentucky, where last week's blizzard has left seven dead. The system that created the blizzard in the Midwest and rain and snow elsewhere left at least 129 persons dead nationwide, most of them in the Midwest.

The new storm system threatened an area from Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska across the mid Mississippi Valley into the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley and the Appalachians.

Very cold weather continued from Montana across the northern Plains and northern Minnesota where many temperatures dropped under the 10-below-zero mark. The Ohio Valley had readings in the single digits and the rest of the nation East of the Rockies had belownormal temperatures.

West of rockies, temperatures were seasonal or slightly higher. Forties were noted in Washington and Oregon and readings were in the 50s in California and the southwest Deserts.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 61 in Miami, to 22-below-zero in Devils Lake, N.D.

Peace unit plea nixed

OAKLAND — Alameda County supervisors refused to write President Carter and Congress to urge orienting the federal budget to human needs rather than military spending this week.

They were asked to make the commitment by East Bay Women for Peace.

Supervisors John George and Charles Santana voted for the measure, Joseph Bort against it and Valerie Raymond and Fred Cooper abstained.

Raymond told The Times that she was willing to support a proposed resolution if it had been "worded more generally, speaking to the federal government to take a hard look at all of its expenditures." "But as an elected official, I'm not willing to make public statements about other levels adjusting their budget priorities unless I have detailed information," said Raymond.

"As a private citizen I have the perception that there is a lot of room to cut fat from the federal budget, cost overruns and such. But I can't say they are any worse in that area (military) than any other place," said Raymond.

On another item, supervisors at Raymond's suggestion asked personnel officials to look into reducing the salary range for the new manager who will staff Zone 7.

Raymond thought the $30,000 starting pay is too high and wants something closer to $25,000. Zone 7 is part of the county public works structure, but has been authorized to hire its own independent manager.

Campaign

City needs election help

The City of Pleasanton is seeking election workers for the upcoming municipal election March 7.

Registered Pleasanton voters are eligible to work as election officers from 7 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. election day. The pay is $28.50.

For information, call 846-3202, ext. 296.

Sidhu to speak

LIVERMORE — City council candidate ırnam Sidhu will speak on issues in the race and answer questions at a coffee gathering tonight.

The coffee will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Neef, 4336 Baylor Way at 7:30 p.m. For dates and times of other gatherings, call Muriel Engle at 443-3531.

Brandes plans endorsement

PLEASANTON — City council member Frank Brandes will formally endorse candidate Stan Kephart Sunday during two campaign coffees in Brandes' home.

Brandes told The Times he will read a statement of endorsement at the coffees beginning at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., at 6884 Corte Sonada Drive.

The endorsement comes as no surprise. Brandes sioned the 37-year-old candidate's nomination papers before the race began. Groups, such as the fire fighters union here, who heavily supported Brandes two which years ago, are also supporting Kephart.

Kephart, a criminal justice consultant, is known as a liberal. He sits on the Valley Mental Health Board and the Alameda County Human Services Commission. He is one of five Pleasanton candidates seeking one of two seats open March 7.

CARD for Anjo

The CARD Committee has endorsed Oliver Anjo for Pleasanton City Council, according to spokesman Cecil Alberts.

The committee passed a unanimous resolution of endorsement Alberts said, because of Anjo's stand against the proposed Valley sewage disposal pipeline being sponsored by the Livermore Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA).

Dyer gets backing

Undersheriff Glenn Dyer has received the endorsement of the Bay Area chapter of the Peace Officers Research Association of California (PORAC) in his campaign for the office of sheriff of Alameda County.

PORAC is an organization of peace officers below the administrative rank who prmote legislation for the benefit of peace officers throughout the state.

Dyer, who announced his candidacy last month, said he was honored to have the PORAC endorsement.

"I am grateful to the members of this distinguished law enforcement organization for their recognition of my abilities to effectively serve the citizens of Alameda County as their sheriff," the 27-year department veteran said.

Dyer will be the featured speaker at the Feb. 9 luncheon meeting of the Amador-Livermore Valley Exchange Club in Pleasanton.

The meeting will be held at the Hungry Hunter restaurant beginning at noon.

Ford vows press access

Andy Ford, a candidate for sheriff of Alameda County, says he would allow the press access to Santa Rita Jail if he were elected.

The 43-year-old Ford, currently Supervising Corrections Services Officer at Santa Rita, said rehabilitation of convicts was a major concern. ". . . Communities would benefit more from productive returnees to the community than from individuals who are essentially in the same status as when entering the institution: No marketable skills, little education, and no job."

Ford said he would increase patrols in unincorporated areas and put more uniformed personnel on the streets. "Our communities are gripped with fear because of rampant increases in crime which the present administration has tolerated at tremendous cost to taxpayers," Ford stated.

Jail classification would also be improved under his leadership, Ford said, stating he would not allow alcoholics, drug abusers, traffic violators, misdemeanors and felons to be housed together at the Pleasanton facility.

Firemen for Kephart

Pleasanton Firefighters Union Local 1974 has endorsed Stan Kephart for election to city council.

The union said members were influenced by Kephart's platform including a close examination of taxes and possible limits on spending; the West Las Positas overpass; more firefighters for the Foothill and Pleasanton Meadows areas; and expansion of clean industrial and commercial business.

Fox faces issues

LIVERMORE — City council candidate Terrence Fox will hold a question-and-answer period followed by a voter registration Friday at 1:30 p.m. at the Vinwood Lodge, 35 Fenton.

He says city needs a little business sense

Council candidate

LIVERMORE — "I'm not running for city council because I don't have enough to do," says Marlin Ebert, who heads a small corporation with divisions here and in Pittsburg, called Electro-Manufacturing Corporation.

"Yet I've observed the most foolish, unbusiness-like activities on the city council for the last couple of years," adds the businessman, who also teaches at Chabot College and serves as an aircraft commander on a Chinook helicopter for the National Guard.

He cites specific issues that he would look into if elected to the council. For example, the solar energy project with its thermal to thermal conversion solar energy for the new city hall is one he describes as "a joke." "They call it a solar energy project, but they're confusing it with thermal to electrical power conversion, which is something we're all interested in. But thermal to thermal is just picking up heat from the sun to heat water, which by their own testimony can only be 35 per cent efficient," he explains intently.

He says it's nothing new, Livermore is not breaking any new frontier in solar energy with the project. This is but one example of what Ebert calls "ivy tower, unrealistic fuzzy thinking on the part of the council."

He thinks the council needs someone with technical expertise in scientific matters, since he says only Councilman Glen Dahlbacka has some experience in such matters.

The project willl cost the city $19,000 over a 20-year period, but Ebert says the project "won't even amortize the less than 20 per cent that the city is putting into it." Federal funds will pay the remaining $99,000 from the Department of Energy.

He doesn't really see any need for building a city hall, since he says the city has only grown 10 per cent population in the last five years. "Why do we need to increase our services and spend $1.6 million on a city hall. I don't think it needs to be done," he says emphatically. "I couldn't justify it if I were running a business."

Another of Ebert's concerns is the drug problem. He says this should be a concern of the council since it is supposed to oversee the operation of the city's business.

Turning to Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (ALVWMA) pipeline project, Ebert observes, "There was not, to my knowledge, a good engineering job done in terms of cost, future costs and what it really means. I don't think we have a competent engineer on the city staff to really recommend a program or to inform the council."

He pursues his point, "A good engineer with a firm background in industrial engineering could solve a lot of problems. We keep hiring and firing consultant firms but it hasn't worked."

Concerning the pipeline project, Ebert poses the question, "How do you find out if it's cast in concrete? I can't believe that if they haven't turned the dirt over that it's cast in concrete. I'd move to put it off six months and get another evaluation."

But Ebert sees the major issue in the election as what he terms the coverup by the mayor and city manager and council in the Ron Lindgren resignation. "As a country, not just a town, we should be damned well sick of coverups," he declares.

He feels that, as a management theory and practice, "I don't think any executive should be in office for the length of time that (Bill) Parness has been city manager."

The candidate states simply, "There is no one on the council now who doesn't have a vested interest somewhere here. That's one of the things I really have to offer, I don't do work for anybody here. I pay taxes and live here, but I don't have to depend on the opinion of the townspeople for my livelihood."

He sees taxes as another issue in the city. "Our taxes have about doubled in the last five years, mine have, I've watched the bill grow. The city has grown about 10 per cent, schools have declined and schools alone account for about 42 per cent of the tax bill."

But he acknowledges that the city council only affects about 12 per cent of the tax bill, the remaining taxes come from the county level.

"The city council can affect the taxes in some way, though," he asserts. "They have never shown any affection for private enterprise, they have been very anti-commercial."

On the parking issue, Ebert refers again to fuzzy-headed thinking. "The parking issue has not been analyzed, with only 16 of 69 merchants showing up at the council meeting to show they favored the two-hour parking limit," he says.

He suggests that those who were parking in the parking spaces should have been questioned prior to and after parking to see what kind of businesses they patronized during that period. This would give some idea as to who really used the lot.

Ebert is a California registered professional nuclear engineer and teaches marketing and salesmanship at Chabot. He also has credentials to teach physics and biology.

Reward in dog poisoning

SAN RAMON — George McGill and 20 other residents of the Mangos Drive neighborhood have banned together in an effort to stop the rash of dog poisoning on their streets.

"We are offering a reward of $450 going to anyone with information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who have poisoned our neighborhood animals and killed one of my dogs," McGill said in a statement released yesterday.

In a door-to-door count during a donation drive for the reward McGill found that a total of seven dogs have been poisoned near Mangos Drive with the majority of those cases happening in the last three months.

"Everybody is scared to take their dogs out of the garage," he said. "The people I've talked to are all in favor of a leash law in Contra Costa County because we don't let our dogs run loose in the streets," he added.

A bird dog owned by McGill was the latest victim of a poisoning spree. It was taken to the Parkway Veternarian Hospital along with McGill's "Keeshound" Sunday evening. Both dogs had become frothy and sick by what Dr. William Evans diagnosed as apparent strychnine poisoning.

The first dog thought to have lost its life from poisoning, died five months ago on the front lawn of its owner, Pamela McVey.

McGill has filed a report with the Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department.

Three residents of Livermore's Hacienda Convalescent Hospital are gearing up for the second annual rock-and-rollathon, Feb. 25 when patient participants will "rock-and-roll" in wheel chairs and rocking chairs to live music in a unique fund raiser for the Alameda County Heart Fund. Lela Taylor, Jimmy Randall and Sue Rice are getting in some early practice for the event, where local residents sponsor the patients at two cents for every minute of rocking and rolling. Last year Hacienda residents raised more than $840 for the fund. David Richer as "Li'l Abner" gets a good, Dogpatch-fashion eartugging from "Mammy Yokum," as played by Laurie O'Brien during scene from Amador Valley High play slated Feb. 16, 17 and 18. (Times photo)

Teen knowledge lags on basic government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly all teen-agers know who the president is, but for many that's where their knowledge of government stops. Less than half can name even one of their senators or representatives in Congress, a nationwide survey has found.

During the first half of the 1970s, n era that included the Vietnam W , campus disturbances and the Wa rgate scandal, understanding of the way democacy works declined among American youth aged 13 and 17, the National Assessment of Education Progress reported Wednesday.

The federally sponsored survey tested 145,000 teen-agers in 1970, 1972 and 1976 to chart their political knowledge and attitudes.

It found that among 17-yearolds, the ability to explain the basic concept of democracy — namely, that the people elect their leaders — declined from 86 percent to 74 percent. Among 13-year-olds, it fell from 53 to 42 percent.

More than 96 percent of both age groups could name the president, but only about 20 percent of the 13-year-olds and 48 percent of the 17-year-olds could name any of their representatives in Congress. That was about the same as 13-yearolds fared in 1970, but it was down from 57 percent for 17-year-olds.

Black students generally scored about 15 percent lower than whites on the tests.

Experts who took part in the study called the results disappointing but not surprising. They blamed it on a shift from civics courses to electives. "Social studies is receiving very low priority in the curriculum and the attrition rate of these courses is very high," said Anna Ochoa, an Indiana University education professor and president of the National Council for the Social Studies.

"Electives are being substituted for hard-core government classes," she said, adding that the number of students in civics courses was more than 700,000 in 1961, but only 450,000 in 1973.

The report also said, "The pressure to return to the 'basics' at the elementary level has in many cases reduced the time available for social studies."

The report said students showed mixed results on recognizing and valuing constitutional rights.

Amador to stage Dogpatch scene

PLEASANTON — David Richer will be "Li'l Abner" and Heather Wilson "Daisy Mae" in the forthcoming Amador Valley High School drama production of "Li'l Abner," scheduled for performances Feb. 16, 17 and 18.

Adele Denny will direct and Greg Knepp will serve as student director.

The story revolves around Daisy Mae's endless efforts to get Li'l Abner to marry her so they may settle in Dogpatch, under the watchful eye of Mammy Yokum. However, her efforts are complicated by the government's discovery of Dogpatch as an unneccessary town and therefore the proper place for testing the Atom Bomb.

All seems lost until Mammy Yokum comes up with her Yokumberry Tonic which has made Abner the outstanding specimen he is.

At a meeting, General Bullmoose offers Li'l Abner a million dollars for the tonic's formula and Daisy and Abner are caught up in a series of complications that see Daisy promised to Earthquake McGoon, and Abner engaged to the General's "confidential" secretary.

But all is saved when Marrying Sam and the Dogpatchers discover a tablet signed "A. Lincoln" and designating Dogpatch as a National Shrine and little Pappy Yokum helps unite Abner and Daisy Mae with a passionizing tonic.

The cast includes the following students:

Murray board selection nears for 5 candidates

Murray School District trustees could appoint a replacement for Bob Foster as early as this Monday, though interviews of the five candidates for the position are still planned.

The Monday meeting is the regular board session of Murray trustees.

The four present members came away from last Monday's special "candidates forum" with a wealth of information on each of the aspirants. Previous plans were to appoint the new member on or before Tuesday, Feb. 14.

Candidates to complete Foster's term, which runs through March of 1979, are Linda Cooley, John Bird, David Melander, Tom McCormick, and Harry Molz.

Among the questions asked of the five Monday was, "How do you feel about collective bargaining?"

McCormick, a community contracts coordinator for the county, said he believes the process is best applied when the rules of arbitration and negotiation are formally adherred to.

Melander, unit supervisor for nine deputy probation officers in the Alameda County Probation Dept., said the process was here to stay. "I understand the system of fact-finding, mediation and arbitration. My real concern is that we maintain the school system and keep schools open."

Bird, a Captain with the U.S. Army and stationed in Alameda, felt collective bargaining was acceptable "as long as it is done in good faith."

But Mrs. Cooley said she "would prefer not to have state and federal laws telling us how to run our school district. But if the communication and harmony evidenced this past year continues, then we can live with it and work with it."

Asked their opinions on the way schools are financed, McCormick commented, "The way schools are financed now I don't think we have too much say other than through our Assemblyman." He felt districts should seek aid via grants and contacts with foundations.

Melander felt Murray is "one of the least affluent districts in the area ... there's a possibility we could get grant money. We should continue cooperative efforts with other districts and eliminate least effective school programs."

Candidates were also asked if their greatest expertise was in financial operations or program planning for a school district.

Molz, a Dublin realtor and resident for the past 12 years, said he would feel "more comfortable" in the field of program planning.

"My strongest asset is probably in the ability to ask questions on both those subjects," stated Melander. "I understand financial statements and also have the ability to understand what I am told."

Bird said he was experienced in both areas. "I don't feel one has a higher priority than the other or should be subjugated one to the other."

McCormick said he deals with a program of $80 million a year. "My job involves both balancing a budget and program aspects."

Mrs. Cooley felt a trustee has to be knowledgeable in any subject, both financial and programming.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: What's wrong with women like my neighbor? I don't understand why she doesn't do something about the brutal treatment she receives from her husband. Most of all, I don't know why she doesn't just leave him. If any man lifted a hand to me, I'd walk out fast and I'd report it to the police. I've been reading and learning a lot lately about battered wives and it seems to me that they must be nuts to begin with. My neighbor admits that her husband beats and mistreats her and her children, but when I suggested she press charges or report it to authorities she refused and made me promise never to mention it to anyone. P.J.

DEAR P. J. : Women who are consistently maltreated by husbands or lovers usually feel they're worth very little. Some have been conditioned by their parents to believe they deserve to be punished.

Some preliminary studies indicate that many abused wives have come from homes where they've seen female members of their families abused by males. Sometimes they take this as a matter of course and seem to assume that this happens in all homes.

According to the Center for Women Police Studies many abused women were victims of incest and other forms of chid abuse. Many also feel that the police cannot give them sufficient protection and that their lives would be at stake. Unfortunately, their fears are usually not exaggerated. In the past, police were reluctant to become involved in what they often refer to as "domestic squabbles."

Your neighbor may be failing to take any action out of fear—fear for her children and fear for herself. If you want to help her, try to talk with her about this terror that she lives with an try to convince her that there are now places whereshe can turn to for help and prection. Without taking some postiive action, her situation will only get worse.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My daughter is expecting a baby in five months and I'm concerned because she's been so depressed lately. I know it's because of marital problems. She's certain that her husband is having an affair with one of their friends. I don't know that this is true, but my daughter is in tears a good part of each day. At night, she and her husband quarrel. I don't think he'd ever strike her and she's very careful of what she does physicaly because she wants this child. I wonder, howver, if she's harming the child because of her mental state. How can I help her. V. B.

DEAR V.B.: It's quite possible that she is hurting the chid, but I don't know what you can do about it other than to lend yor support and try to relieve her anxietines whenever possible.

Recent studies in England revealed that mothers who suffered from interpersonal tensions during their pregnancies had exceedingly unhealthy children. Psychology professor Dr. D. H. Stott found the most damaging types of such stress were marital discord, tensions with other members of the family and, to a lesser degree, quarrels with a neighbor. When the pregnant woman was subject to continuous tension to which she could find no solution, the child ran twice the usual risk of handicap in health development or behavior. It couldn't be explained by birth complications, prematurely or postnatal differences.

Since your daughter is hving such serious problems with her husband, it might be better if she lived with you or moved away from home until after the baby is born. The time might enable her and her husband to get a better perspective on each other and their futures.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHY CAN'T A HONEY BEE STING MORE THAN ONCE?"
ALAN BAUER
PITTSBURGH, PA
A. THE WORKER HONEY-BEE USUALLY LOSES ITS BARBED STINGER WHEN IT STINGS. THIS KILLS THE BEE.
DICK ROGERS
© 1978 by NEA, Inc., T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.
2/2

Many people are afraid of bees bacause they sting. But usually the honeybee will only sting in self-defense.

The worker honeybee's stinger is covered with barbs. When the bee stings, the barbs hold so tightly in the victim's flesh that the bee usually cannot pull the stinger out.

The bee must tear itself away, leaving part of its body behind with the stinger. After losing its stinger, the bee dies.

And that is why a honeybee can use its sting only once in its life.

A bee sting causes sudden pain and swelling, and is painful because it contains a small amount of poison made of an acid that is injected into the wound through the bee's hollow, needlelike stinger.

Muscles inside the sting pump the poison into the wound even after the bee has flown away.

If you are stung by a bee, brush the stinger off immediately. This reduces the amount of poison that enters the wound.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR LAMB — I am 72 years old. I have a problem that is getting worse as I grow older. I have had nose bleeds all my life. My doctor only burns the vessels in my nose with an electric needle. In a day or two I have nose bleeds again.

I have high blood pressure at times, but I don't believe this is causing my nose bleeds. A little child surely would not have high blood pressure.

I also have sinus problems. I need to know what I can do for myself. I have heard that vitamin K is sometimes given to nose bleed patients. My doctor has not suggested this to me.

I am very discouraged. Doctor bills are too high and on a fixed income (social security), I cannot be running to a doctor all the time.

DEAR READER — The ultimate cause of a nose bleed is a broken blood vessel and cauterizing it with an electric needle is often sufficient.

In other cases if there are a lot of blood vessels, it is necessary to surgically tie the source of them shut.

Why don't you go see a specialist in ear, nose and throat disorders if you can? He may be able to do some local correction that helps.

Meanwhile, use a small cotton swab and coat the inside of your nose with baby oil in the morning when you get up and again at night before you go to bed. Keeping the area soft and preventing dryness often prevents crusts, irritation and bleeding.

Even though your high blood pressure is of more recent origin it can provide the increased pressure to bleed from tiny broken blood vessels so it may be an aggravating factor.

Vitamin K only helps if there is a decreased ability of the blood to clot.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

While the Culbertson-Lenz match gave Culbertson the opportunity to claim that he was the best player and his system the best system, by 1935 it had become apparent to leading bridge players that the team of Oswald Jacoby-David Bruce-Howard Schenken-Michael Gottlieb and various substitutes were the best players in the world and their system, which was fairly similar to Ely's, the best system.

Culbertson countered by playing a match against Hal and Dorothy Sims. A match the Culbertsons really could not lose because Jo Culbertson was a far better player than Dorothy Sims. Still it was a good match.

In this hand, Ely should really have passed at three notrump. Jo would have brought that contract home easily by careful play.

However, Ely went to four spades. Hal opened the queen of diamonds. Ely rose with the ace of diamonds, played ace and one spade only to go down when Hal took his king and led a second diamond. There was no way to shut out Hal's nine of spades and Ely still had to lose another trick.

Ely could have made the hand by ducking one diamond, but there was and has been no criticism of his actual play.

The Fish Place dining room

Fresh fish fits the bill

PLEASANTON — The Fish Place located in Mission Shopping center might be the only place in the Valley to eat freshly caught Bay Area fish but according to owner Pat Silveria they're taking a turn toward turf specialties.

"We've added several varieties of meat," she said, "and we're restructuring our menu to lower some prices on some items."

Right now you can get "The Fish Place Treasures" for only $4.95. It comes complete with crab cioppino, a seafood stew called Siciliano, steamed clams with butter, wine and garlic broth and whole cracked crab. The dinner includes salad, bread, and butter.

All you can eat Sunday feast with two main dishes

The Fish Place is also serving a house speciality consisting of Brochet of Beef. The dinner also priced at $4.95 comes with onions, mushrooms and green peppers with bordelaise sauce and a strip of cheese.

Other "land lubber" items include chopped sirloin, veal piccata, veal scallopine and barbeque pork ribs with sauce.

For less than $5 you can feast on anyone of these fresh fish items: fillet of sole, rex or dabs, fillet of petrale sole, fillet of cod or snapper, or scallops, deep fried or saute.

The Fish Place is great for either lunch or dinner. Their wide variety of fresh fish is caught from the San Francisco and Monterey Bay Areas.

And, one last thing, Pat Silveria wants you to know they have an afternoon fashion show Thursday between noon and 1:30 p.m.

Brittany Restaurant

A place to eat, not to bathe

MARTINEZ — Richard Backe's plea to the county to permit a Walnut Creek restaurant to recycle its water was a wasted effort.

The Board of Supervisors Tuesday told Backe, president of Graywater for Graywater Systems in Concord, that the system he installed in the Brittany restaurant last summer as a water conservation measure would have to be unhooked.

The supervisors made their decision after Ted Gerow of the county Health Department said the system was unsafe.

The system collects water from the restaurant's dishwasher and ice machine to use in flushing the restaurant's toilets.

Actually, only water from the ice machine is currently being used, after the Health Department first checked out the system last August, and then told the restaurant owners to shut it down.

Gerow, admitting the system has merit, feared possibility someone might switch hookups and contaminate the fresh water supply. He added that the system was installed without a permit.

He said until a fool-proof method is devised, the health department could not approve its use, especially in a restaurant.

"I do not believe we ought to recycle water in restaurants," he declared. "It's where we eat, not where we bathe."

L.A. takes culinary crown

Cal restaurateurs knock Carter's three martini lunch

LOS ANGELES — Small is still beautiful in the restaurant business, says a veteran California restauranteur, and fledgling gourmets have a good chance for success.

"You take a guy with a little cooking ability and he runs the kitchen and his partner runs the front end and they do a great job," says Stan Stockton.

"They get old funky chairs out of the flea markets , buy used equipment and if they know that they're doing they can turn out a good meal.

Stockton, 50-year-old president of the Southern California Restaurant Association, operates on a slighlty larger scale himself. The Smoke House, a popular Burbank restaurant he has owned for 25 years, serves about 1,000 dinners a night.

He believes, however, that today's diners want personal attention no matter the size of the restaurant.

"I'm a service freak myself," he said. "I don't like salad bars. I like to be taken care of when I go out and I think most people are the same way. And you get that personal attention to quality and service from an owner-manager."

Whatever is drawing them, more Californians are dining out than ever before. Overall sales of the state's 46,000 eating and drinking establishments were $8.3 billion last year, the California State Restaurant Association says, with that revenue generating $500 million in sales taxes about 12 percent of the state's total sales taxes.

In addition, Los Angeles may be replacing New York as the nation's culinary capital, according to Restaurant Business Magazine, an industry trade journal. Angelenos spent $2.5 billion at the tables in 1976 compared to $2.4 billion for New Yorkers, the magazine estimated, noting that this marked the first time New York has been ranked second.

Figures for 1977 are not yet available.

Californians will eat one of every three meals away from home this year, the state association predicts, with increased income and leisure time expected to boost the ratio to one of every two in 1980.

Despite the apparent health of the state's restaurant industry, Stockton and his colleagues are upset about President Carter's proposal to out allowable tax deductions for business meals to 50 percent.

The proposal, aimed at what Carter calls the "three-martini business lunch," would severely damage the food and beverage industry while producing little new tax revenue, says Stockton.

"It's a vote-puller," he said. "Nobody wants people going out and having three-martini lunches but a survey by the National Restaurant Association puts the tab for the average business lunch is $3.93 per person. You can't have too many martinis on that."

Stockton recently coordinated the Southern California portion of "Operation Mail-a-Menu" a nationwide protest staged by the NRA in which members mailed their menus and accompanying protest letters to Carter and other elected officials.

Missing skier is found

SQUAW VALLEY (AP) — A skier missing four days was plucked by a California Highway Patrol helicopter off a frigid mountain six miles from Squaw Valley this morning, Placer County sheriff's officials said.

Barry Weiss, 26, of Reno was in fair condition at a Truckee hospital where doctors said he might lose a few toes.

Capt. Marvin Jacinto of the Placer County sheriff's search and rescue team said Weiss told officers he became lost Saturday afternoon when he skied down the wrong side of a mountain at Squaw Valley resort. He spent the nights, when the temperature was near zero, in holes he dug in the snow and tried during the day to ski back to the resort, he said.

The search for Weiss did not begin until Tuesday, when his employer reported him missing. His car was found at the resort. He was wearing thermal underwear and ski clothes.

Puppet show in Livermore

Jim Gamble, a puppeteer who has performed throughout Asia, the United States and Europe, will present a special puppet show Saturday, Feb. 4 at 3 p.m. at St. Charles Borromeo Church, 1315 Lomitas, Livermore.

Tickets for the event are $1.25 and will be sold at the door.

Gamble, an airline pilot for Continental Airlines, gives over 400 puppet shows annually in all parts of the world. Originator of some 700 puppet creations, he draws extensively on his technical backround to create everything from a Playboy Bunny puppet to a Tom Jones doll. He has worked for audiences of 75,000 — at the Cotton Bowl half-time and for audiences in Vietnam, Micronesia and in Las Vegas.

A 25-year veteran of the puppet field, Gamble has created puppets for Disneyland and in Walt Disney World, as well as for television and movies.

He worked his way through college by giving shows. Now, by working at one fantasy and one technical airline career at the same time, he's created a kind of balance.

"One job compliments the other," he says of his airline and puppet careers. "Flying is a precise and unforgiving business, but with puppets, I can be as creative as I want."

The public is invited to the show, sponsored by Livermore Playschool through the East Bay Council of Nursery Schools.

Dublin San Ramon Lions Club member Ken Cherry, left, receives a ticket donation from Howard Johnson's Waitress Paula Soto while the Dublin restaurant's Manager Ron Marovich transacts similar business with Lion Paul Ernst. # Grocery bills up last month

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The first month of the new year brought higher bills to grocery shoppers who found a widespread and predicted boost in the cost of hamburger along with along with scattered increases in the prices of other items, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

There was an estimated 3 percent decline in beef production in 1977-and the American Meat Institute is anticipating a further decline of 2 percent in 1978. There has been a particularly sharp drop in the slaughter of non-grain-fed cattle — the kind that wind up as chopped beef and other less expensive cuts. That decrease in supply is expected to boost the price of hamburger by 10 percent to 15 percent this year, the meat institute says.

The AP survey showed that the total bill for 14 commonly purchases food and nonfood products priced at one supermarket in each of 13 cities rose an average of 1.2 percent during January. That compared with a 2.3 percent boost in December.

The survey was based on a random list of 15 items drawn up on March 1, 1973. The price of each item has been checked on or about the start of each succeeding month since then. One item — chocolate chip cookies — had to be dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the maker discontinued the package size used in the check.

The latest survey showed the marketbasket bill rose at the checklist store in nine cities last month, up an average of 2.8 percent. The bill dropped in four cities, down an average of 1.7 percent.

Comparing prices at the end of January with those a year earlier, the AP found the market basket bill at the checklist stores rose an average of 9.5 percent. When coffee — which rose to nearly $5 a pound last spring and has declined slowly since then — was removed from the total, the boost was not quite so bitter. The coffee-free bill at the checklist stores increased anaverage of 7.1 percent.

The AP found that the price of chopped chuck increased during January at the checklist store in nine cities. The average rise was 26 percent. Measuring all 13 survey cities, the average price of a pound of the hamburger meat at the checklist stores went from $1.03 at the start of the year to $1.15 today, a boost of 12 percent.

Hamburger wasn't the only item to take a bigger bite out of the grocery budget last month. Pork chops also increased, with the cost of a pound of center - cut pork chops rising during January at the checklist store in seven cities, up an average of 13 percent. In contrast to beef, pork has been increasing in supply and prices generally have remained fairly stable. There was no immediate explanation for the January increase. But some sources said a smaller - than - predicted encrease in the recent hog supply could be part of the reason.

Sugar prices, which started rising in December, reflecting government price supports instituted late in 1977, went up again during January. The price of a five-pound sack of sugar increased at the checklist store in seven cities, up an average of 6 percent. The average price of the sugar at the survey stores in the 13 cities went from $1.12 at the start of the month to $1.16 at the end.

This winter, high PG&E bills could have severe side effects.

Better go on an energy diet.

This winter's PG&E bills may give you cold chills. Because they're likely to be the highest ever.

The cause is clear. Two years of drought have brought PG&E's hydroelectric generating capacity way down. To fill the gap, we have to buy more high-priced oil to generate electricity. The price of natural gas has skyrocketed, too. The cost of heat is the worst part, because it's the biggest part of your energy bill.

But there's a cure. Our prescription is, go on an energy diet. After all, a calorie is a unit of heat. And no matter what the rates are, the fewer calories you consume, the less money you spend.

There are lots of ways to save on heat. Insulate. Weatherstrip. Keep your drapes closed at night to keep the heat in. And most important, set your furnace thermostat at 65°–less when you go to bed. For every degree below 72° down to 65° you can save 5% of your heating cost.

There are many more ways to save in our free booklet, "The Waste Watcher's Energy Diet." Get your copy from any PG&E office or telephone toll free 800-792-8000. (If your area code is 805, call collect 415-543-2073.)

It'll help you stay on an energy diet and keep your bills from getting overweight.

Mats score early, but lose

After Granada scored virtually right after the start of the match Dublin High School's soccer team pulled itself together and went on to take a 2-1 victory over the Matadors on the winners' field yesterday.

The victory moved the Gaels' record to 10-1-1, two points ahead of idle Amador Valley, in the East Bay ATHLETIC League race. The defeat was a damaging blow to Granada's hopes of winning the championship as the Matadors fell to 8-2-2. They are now in third place, three points behind Dublin.

With less than a minute gone in the opening period Mike D'Ambra took a pass from the left side from Gary Bannister and belted it in on a high arch from 15 yards out to give the Mats the lead.

However, the Gaels came back and started to assert themselves on offense, missing several close shots in the period.

With about six minutes gone in the period Granada was called for tripping and Kevin Dick punched in the penalty kick to tie the score.

Dublin dominated play throughout most of the second half but needed a penalty kick to win the contest.

With eight minutes remaining Granada's Jim Childs was called for handball and Dick was again given the penalty kick. He banged it straight through and the Gaels were in command.

The Gaels continued to press the remainder of the contest and missed a couple of other chances, one when a shot bounced off the sidebar.

Dublin had a clear advantage in shot attempts, firing 20 on goal to five for the Matadors. Granada was able to move the ball fairly well until it got near the Gael goal and the Dublin fullbacks and goal tender Rusty Allen held them off.

With the victory Amador the Gaels go into tomorrow's match with California on the Dublin field in good shape. Unless the Grizzlies pull a major upset the Gaels should go into next week's season- finale with Amador Valley no worst than tied for first place.

Dublin coach Gene Cassvan was blunt in his evaluation of his team's offensive performance.

"Yes," he said when asked if he thought the Gaels would be about to move the ball as well as they did against Granada.

"We're dedicating the California game to our fans," he went on. "Because they've stayed with us throughout the season win or lose."

Rivals ask EBAL to investigate Granada

Too many matches?

The Granada High School wrestling team may be more than in trouble. Seven of the Matadors starters may be out for the season.

A protest, filed with the East Bay Athletic League's Board of Governors Tuesday, by four of the league's coaches, alleged that the coach, Steve Page, and the seven wrestlers, are in violation of three rules set by the California Interscholastic Federation.

The Granada grapplers named in the protest were Bill Freeman, Roy Davis, Tom Sherman, Rob Compton , Rick Quiroz, and Ron Haeft. The charges were brought collectively by Livermore coach Ed King, Amador Valley coach Ron Blanton, Jay Craney from Foothill, and Dublin's Pat Hallen.

"There are three things being investigated. The first one, and number one on our list, is the eighteen match limit. The second one is the rule that there are to be no scrimmages of any kind. They had three," King said. "Number three is that he violated the tounament entry rules, and with full knowledge. It was a novice meet, and it was clearly stated that there will be no seniors, and second-year or lettered wrestlers. He brought two seniors and four or five second year men," King charged.

The tournament is question was the Novice Tournament held at Livermore early in the season.

"It's just great. He, (King), waits until the last minute to hit us with it," Page said bitterly. "The second allegation, in regards to that tournament has no truth at all. This was all discussed at a coaches meeting before the seaon started. I should have had a tape recorder. It's the only way to prove what I'm saying. All I understood was that no varsity wrestlers were eligible. I wasn't there at the start of the tournament. Ed King was supposed to be running it, and I didn't send any varsity wrestlers, but the two guys that he disqualified were both seniors. There was no rule about seniors that I knew about. The other one was a junior varsity and a sophmore. King kicked out all three before I got there," Page related .

He stated that at the coaches meeting in November, nothing was said about seniors.

"I wrestled in this league ten years ago, and so did King. There was never any mention of seniors, but that's the rule he enforced. He never told me thing. He never explained why my kids were kicked out either , until now. Those were his rules, but he was totally wrong," Page said.

A's move still possible

Nahas week of decision

OAKLAND — "This may be the week of final decision," on the question of where the Oakland A's will play this year, says the president of the Oakland Coliseum, Robert T. Nahas.

When Denver oilman Marvin Davis announced last week that his proposed deal to buy the American League baseball team was off, it appeared certain that the A's would stay here at least another season under owner Charles O. Finley.

But it was revealed Wednesday that last-minute attempts are being made to work out some solution to the San Francisco Bay Area baseball problem. Davis, who wanted to move the team to Denver, may even be back in the picture.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, American League President Lee MacPhail and National League President Chub Feeney met with Nahas in San Francisco Monday. The A's lease with the Coliseum has 10 years remaining.

"Either an alternative will be worked out that's acceptable to all or we'll go on the way we have been, with two teams," Nahas told the Oakland Tribune.

The A's and San Francisco Giants each lost more than $1 million last year when their combined attendance was 1.2 million, with the A's drawing a sickly total of 495,000 fans.

The Coliseum management had sounded out San Francisco Mayor George Moscone on the possibility of the Giants playing half their home games in Oakland should the A's be allowed to leave. Moscone said no.

Kuhn talked to Moscone and, according to Nahas, "got a similar response from the mayor."

Finley was not at Tuesday's meeting in San Francisco but reportedly will be in Oakland this week. MacPhail reportedly will meet with Davis Thursday.

College slate loaded

There's a large schedule of college basketball games tonight involving Northern California teams.

The University of San Francisco, tied for the West Coast Athletic Conference lead with Nevada-Reno, each with 5-1 records, travels to Portland. In another WCAC contest Santa Clara is at Seattle in a must-win situation for the Broncos. Santa Clara is 3-3 in conference action while Seattle is 4-2. St. Mary's hosts Loyola in another contest.

Pacific-Eight Conference play has California (2-3) traveling to USC and Stanford (1-4) meeting undefeated UCLA.

Pacific Coast Athletic Association action has Fullerton at Fresno State and San Jose State hosting Pacific.

San Jose State is 5-13 overall and 0-11 on the road, so the home game is a welcome relief for the Spartans.

A 'Rocky pastime

DALY CITY — The Bay Area is known as one of the most diversive locales in the country. There must be hundreds of ways to entertain one's self on the weekend.

There's dancing, the movies and watching local bands. For the adventuresome, there's always a trip to San Francisco, a romantic walk through Tilden Park or a fun night of minor league hockey.

Then of course, there's....Now wait a second, you're saying to yourself. Who would be foolish enough to attend a minor league hockey game on a Friday night?

Many.

More than 7,000 "fools" attended the San Francisco Shamrocks-San Diego Mariners contest this past weekend, a Pacific Hockey League record and more can be expected tonight when the 'Rocks host Phoenix at 7:30 p.m.

The protective siding around the arena is a make-shift screen instead of the conventional plexi-glass. It's now the antiquated Cow Palace and not the Oakland Coliseum. The names Maruk, Meloche and Croteau have been replaced by Rivers, O'Toole and Sunderland.

The Seals are gone, but It seems a hockey fan is a hockey fan, no matter if it's the Seals, Shamrocks or clowns in uniform.

"Why am I here? I love hockey," said Sandy Nelson, a San Mateo resident. "I've grown up on hockey and I like the Shamrocks. They're really good."

"I like hockey and it's cheap," said Julie Morrill of Santa Clara.

Morrill's enthusiasm for sports is all in the family. Well, almost. Her boyfriend. Tom Curran, does the sports news on radio KEEN.

For Newark's Mike Wondka, the Sharmrocks are a cure to his appetite for hockey.

"The pros ain't here any more, so I watch the Shamrocks," he said.

For Audrey Fiascnaro of San Mateo, it was more a lust for the physical aspect of the game.

"I don't like basketball or football. None of those sports. I only like hockey. It's rough," she said, almost clenching her teeth.

Fiasconaro, sporting a "Keep On Pucking" button, said she's also interested in the game because her nephew plays it.

Alhambra High School student Brad Pighin jeopardized any thoughts of a career in his city's chamber of commerce when he said, "Why am I here? There's nothing to do in Martinez."

So, for the theater opporators, disco dance club managers and park rangers, you'll have to suffer a loss of patronage.

Hockey is back in town.

PCAA's Hill retires

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jess Hill, the only full-time commissioner the Pacific Coast Athletic Association has ever had, announced Wednesday he will retire effective July 1, 1978.

Hill, 71, came to the PCAA in 1972 following a long career at Southern Cal, where he served as athletic director from 1957 through 1972. Hill entered USC as a student in 1927 and participated in football, baseball and track and later coached the football and track teams.

"My six years with the Pacific Coast Athletic Association were a most rewarding, challenging and enjoyable experience, and one that I shall long remember and cherish," said Hill.

"We are truly going to miss Jess Hill," said PCAA President Frank Bowman. "His leadership has helped us accomplish a great many things in a relatively short period of time."

Latest rumor: Warriors to move

SANTA CLARA — The Golden State Warriors, still drawing large crowds in Oakland despite a lackluster season, will be courted by Santa Clara, 40 miles south, if a proposed giant coliseum gets off the ground, city officials said.

Before they can go anywhere, however, the Warriors must contend with the Milwaukee Bucks tonight at the Coliseum Arena at 7:30 p.m.

The effort is being promoted by Santa Clara's chamber of commerce, which has commissioned a $15,000 study on the feasibility of building a sports arena seating between 18,000 and 22,000 persons. The city has a population of about 92,000.

About 13,000 fans now can be accomodated in the Warriors' current home at the Coliseum, which ranks fourth from the bottom in size of the NBA's 22 facilities. The Warriors' signed a 10-year contract with the arena in September, 1975.

Santa Clara Mayor William Gissler said the size of the city's proposed arena was chosen after a meeting last fall between the chamber and Scotty Stirling, assistant to the president of the Warriors.

Stirling said Tuesday the Coliseum's seating capacity was a drawback and the Warriors have an option to pull out of their agreement after five years.

But things are only in the talking stage and Stirling admitted, "Any plans depend on the availability of a building superior to this one and at the present time there is no building superior to this one."

William Cunningham, Oakland Coliseum general manager, said expansion of their facility is under study, "but there's nothing definite in terms of capacity and cost."

Cunningham said he didn't believe another large sports arena in the San Francisco Bay area was economically feasible, adding, "We'll believe a new arena when we see it."

The Santa Clara city council is to receive the completed study in April, Gissler said.

Tonight, the Warriors can move into a tie for the sixth and final Western Conference play-off berth with a win over Milwuakee which lost in Portlwnd Tuesday while Golden State was defeating New Jersey.

Don't count on it.

"I don't believe in hexes, but the Bucks have beaten us quite a few times the last couple of years," said Attles, bringing to mind a 25-foot jumper by Brian Winters that dealt Golden State a home court loss earlier this season.

"Just because you're home, doesn't mean you're a winner."

No, indeed.

Rains chase away fish & anglers

Recent storms have apparently dampened the success of local anglers, the East Bay Regional Park District reports.

At Del Valle Lake in Livermore, fishing success is "practically nonexistent" despite regular trout plantings. The rain received in January has clouded the water and washed food into the reservoir for the fish. As stream waters clear, the mouth of the creek should become a hot spot. Angling success for the past two weeks was .05 fish per angler hour.

The state Department of Fish and Game planted 5,000 rainbow trout here Jan. 12 and another 5,000 Jan. 24.

At Shadow Cliffs in Pleasanton, small rainbow trout, in the six to eight inch range, are being caught quite readily. These smaller rainbows are part of the latest plant. These fish are being caught on marshmallows, salmon eggs and floating cheese. Success is variable, standing at .65 trout per angler hour.

Approximately 1,500 rainbow trout, each weighing one-quarter pound, were planted in Shadow Cliffs Jan. 24.

At Lafayette Reservoir in Lafayette, angler pressure was light and results slow for rainbow trout. Salmon eggs are providing the most hits. No one area is livlier than another, and other species are providing poor action presently.

Approximately 2,500 one-fifth pound trout were planted here Jan. 17.

At San Pablo Reservoir in Orinda, the catch rate for all species was a poor .20 fish per angler hour. Dirty water and a low turnout of anglers were part of the cause. Shore anglers fishing the protected cove areas with either garlic cheese or red salmon eggs had the best luck.

More than 2,700 one-quarter pound trout were planted here Jan. 10 and 2,000 one-half pound trout were planted Jan. 13.

At Pt. Pinole Pier in Pinole, anglers are experiencing the best fishing they have had since the pier opened late last year. Many striped bass in the eight to 10 pound range are being taken, mostly on grass shrimp. Sturgeon are also being taken on grass shrimp and pile worms.

At Lake Chabot in Castro Valley, fishing success has increased slightly to an average .34 fish per angler hour. Salmon eggs and marshmallows are the recommended baits for trout.

Approximately 1,500 trout were planted here Jan. 19.

Rivals clash tonight

Eight traditional crosstwon rivals square off tonight in East Bay Athleti League girls basketball paly. All of the contests are scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Foothill will host the undefeated Amador Dons, while the luckless 0-7 Granada Matadors travel to Livermore. Monte Vista hosts San Ramon, and California will visit the second place Dublin Gaels.

'It's not my kids' fault'

King cited the Mt. Eden Tournament, held two weeks ago, as another alleged violation of the tournament entry rules.

"It was a JV tournament, and the rules stated that there were no varsity, no seniors, or no wrestler that had ever taken first in a tournament that were eligible. He brought two seniors and one novice winner," King said.

The possible violation of the eighteen match limit ruling was brought to light after the El Cerrito Tournament last Sunday, which Granada swept over 17 other schools according to King.

"That's when we knew he'd gone over the limit. It's going to be a long drawn out affair, but the guy is wrong. He can protest all he wants," King suggested.

Page termed the eighteen match limit, "a can of worms."

"My guys are over if the scrimmages are counted, but I don;t see how they can count the scrimmages," he conceded. "It's not in the rules for other sports like football and basketball. It was initiated last year. It was almost defeated too. Last year, nobody even cared about it. Nobody even gives a damn except the Livermore coach, who stabbed me in the back. Two weeks ago, he was putting his arm around me and asking how they could beat Amador," Page said.

The stunned coach was adament about where the blame, if any, lies.

"It's not my kids fault. Maybe they can't wrestle at all now. The rules are not clearly defined; they're hazy. It's unethical to count the scrimmages. How can they penalize my kids because we didn't know," he asked.

Blanton said that none of the coaches liked the rule limiting the amount of matches when it came into affect two years ago.

"He's aware of the rules, just like the rest of us. He did it last year too, that was common knowledge. He has a habit of trying to set himself above the rules. Our kids don't get the extra time by participating in scrimmages. He just wasn't fair to his wrestlers," Blanton said.

The first contact that Blanton had personally with any alleged violation was at the recent Mission San JOse Tournament.

"Ed waited, and when they went over the limit, he called him on it. He should be hung for it. He knows better. I'd like to see those kids wrestle, but there should be a precedent set. He should get more than a slap on the hand. Every coach in the EBAL feels the same way. He's just doing what he wants to," Blanton explained.

Page believes that one of the reasons for the charged so abruptly leveled against him are because of personally feeling between the coaches.

"Ther've been coaches that aren't happy with me. The Foothill coach is upset with the novice tournament. He said some violent things to me and my assistant coach. He's going to be a big, tough guy, right? The Amador coach is upset probably because we beat them for the tournament championship two years ago. There was a questionable call by an official, but my kid won. He hasn't talked to me at all since. I call him all the time, trying to work together with him, but he never returns my calls. King, he just zapped us. He couldn't even hand the protest to me face-to-face. They're really carry-over grudges," Page speculated.

After meeting with Granada principal Snodgrass late yesterday afternoon, he was told that the matter has been forwarded to the EBAL Governing Board for consideration of the charges. Originally, this morning, the head of the Board, George Wilson had said that, "it's a school matter. It's not a league matter yet, and we are investigating to see if any rules have been violated."

But someone changed their mind during the day, and Page has been asked to appear before the Board at 9 a.m. today. He denies that he was ever informed that the matter was to be kept internal.

"They're not keeping it within the school. They're bumping it up. It's whoever makes up these rules and doesn't tell anybody until it's too late It's really hurting those seven kids. Six are seniors and might never have another shot at high school competition. I don't know what's going to happe to my kids," Page said.

"Why should the kids be penalized," he questioned. "It makes me feel bad that they're not penalizing me, but this is sure convienient for Livermore," he added.

Granada was scheduled to host Livermore tonight for the last meet of the season. Both schools boast 5-1 second league records behind the undefeated Amador Dons.

(Other meets that are more likely to take place are Foothill at Amador, Dublin at California, and Monte Vista travels to San Ramon).

Page is reluctant to wrestle his younger freshamn team against Livermore, but if he is forced to, he says he still doesn't know what he'll do.

"I just don't know what's going to happen. I'm handcuffed by the rules. If they want money at the door or something, then maybe I'll have to wrestl them. But my freshamn could get hurt against their seniors, and I care a lot more about the kids than I do about money," Page said.

The sad and disillusioned coach wanted to go on the record as saying, "don't hurt the kids whatever else. Don't pay me or my assistant as coaches. Don't bother to pay us at all for the season. If it's the money, they're worried about, then take my paycheck," he offered.

'Quakes solve one

SAN JOSE — The San Jose Earthquakes have apparently solved one major problem with the signing of Dave Davidovic.

Davidovic, a 32-year old veteran of the Lierse team in the Belgian First Division, became a member of the 'Quakes Tuesday when San Jose purchased his contract from Lierse.

The former Belgian star once played as a midfielder for the Oakland Clippers in the late 1960's but now plays sweeperback.

Earthquake coach Gabbo Gavric regards Davidovic as one of the best sweepers in soccer.

Davidovic, a native of Yugoslavia, is expected to join the club in mid-April, missing two games. He should fill the sweeperback position held by Miro Pavlovic the past two seasons.

San Jose also signed Ilija Mitic, the all-time leading scorer in the NASL, to a one-year contract. He has scored 96 goals in his career and will be aiming for 100 goals this season.

Only four 'Quakes remain unsigned. They are Laurie Calloway, Buzz Demling, Mark Demling and Mike Hewitt. San Jose opened its training camp yesterday with 19 players in camp.

Stompers sell 2000

OAKLAND — The Oakland Stompers have topped the 2000 mark in season ticket sales for the 1978 North American Soccer League season.

John Karnish, a stockbroker with Smith, Barney, Harris, Upham and Company of the New York Stock Exchange, was the 2,000th season ticket buyer and was given a case of California wine by the Stompers in recognition.

The Stompers hope to go over the 3000 mark by the end of this month. The Minnesota Kicks sold over 3,900 tickets in 1976 to set a league first-season record.

Owner Milan Mandaric and Stomper coach Mirko Stojanovic are currently in Europe in an attempt to add more players to the Oakland roster. The team is reportedly close to signing two or three of the top players in West Germany's Bundesleague.

Allen new Ram coach

LOS ANGELES — George Allen took over again as coach of the Los Angeles Rams Wednesday, saying that getting to the Super Bowl was the No. 1 objective and adding, "I don't think we have to get there this year, but that is certainly our goal."

Owner Carroll Rosenbloom earlier had announced that Allen, who coached the Rams from 1966-70, would be returning to the job from which he actually had been fired twice. The late Dan Reeves, who owned the Rams at that time, dismissed Allen in 1969 but brought him back amid objections to the firing from players and fans.

A coach's returning to a team from which he has been fired is highly unusual.

Farfan named prep of week

John Farfan of Livermore High School is this week's Flecto winner for Alameda County.

Farfan, a guard on the 'Poke basketball team, scored 36 points in games against Monte Vista and Granada as the Cowboys raised their East Bay Athletic League mark to 7-1.

He played extremly well on defense and keyed the Cowboy press which pressured Monte Vista into several turnovers.

Farfan is also an outstanding free throw shooter, averaging over 80 percent per contest.

Karl Boeger of Clayton Valley is the Contra Costa winner. Boeger, a 193-pound wrestler, is 22-1 on the season with 12 pins, two of which he gained last week.

Government pays more for workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government reckons that it pays its blue-collar workers and most of its whitecollar clerical workers more than they would earn in similar private jobs.

Federal blue-collar workers earn an average of 8 percent more than the officially determined average pay for their local counterparts. A 1974 Civil Service Commission study said 60 percent of secretaries, stenographers, keypunch operators, and other clerical and technical workers earn more than their local counterparts in private jobs. Average hourly wages for postal workers are one-third higher than the average for four selected service industries — banks, insurance companies, telephone companies and electric utilities.

Periodic merit pay raises are virtually automatic for whitecollar workers. Bonus pay for superior performance is rare, and the average payment is $227. High-level federal executives, who earn up to $47,500 a year, are nevertheless often paid thousands of dollars a year less than they could earn in similar jobs in business.

"Currently, we do have a pay policy to reward high performance and penalize low performance," says Civil Service Commission Chairman Alan Campbell. "But that system is not working properly."

Federal union officials argue that the methods for comparing government and private pay are faulty, and anyway that the government should pay better than average wages to attract better than average employees.

"Average is mediocre; do you want a mediocre government?" asks pay specialist George A. Hobt of the American Federation of Government Employees.

What seems to concern Carter administration officials most is not the level of pay but the idea that people in similar jobs are paid the same regardless of effort, talent or achievement.

Theoretically, the federal government pays its truck drivers, mechanics, janitors, carpenters and other blue-collar workers the going rate in their own community. But in 1972 Congress installed two new pay steps that boosted average federal blue-collar pay several percentage points higher than the officially determined going rate.

Blue-collar workers now are paid on a five-step scale, with the second step from the bottom equal to the locally prevailing wage. Since the average federal blue-collar worker is on the fourth step, not the second, he gets about 8 percent more than the going rate, by official reckoning.

In some areas the federal pay system is causing blue-collar workers to receive higher pay than their white-collar bosses. The management task force found that in Sacramento, Calif. a typical white-collar supervisor could earn a maximum of $19,617 per year while blue-collar subordinates could earn up to $20,301.

White-collar pay in the federal government is set according to a single nationwide scale, regardless of locally prevailing pay or local price levels.

For lower-wage employees in secretarial, clerical and technical work the government's pay scale is generally higher than local pay rates in private industry, according to Civil Service Commission studies in 1970, 1972 and 1974.

The 1974 study was the broadest, covering 21 types of jobs in 86 cities. "In the areas studied, 59 percent of the federal employees are paid on the average higher than their (private sector) counterparts in those areas," the commission said.

More than one-fourth of those federal employees were in Washington, D.C., where the government is the largest employer and therefore sets the going rate for private enterprise, rather than vice versa. Outside the capital, the commission found that 81 percent of the federal workers studied were paid on the average higher than the going rate in private enterprise. In the heavily unionized Postal Service, where pay has been subject to collective bargaining since 1971, wages have tended to go up faster than for the rest of the economy for some time.

Comparing pay only, and ignoring fringe benefits, Ohio University economist Douglas K. Adie recently concluded that postal workers are paid one third higher than necessary. He based this on a comparison with pay levels in banking, insurance, telephone communications and electric utilities

Those industries paid an average of $5.39 per hour in 1976, while the Postal Service paid an average of $7.20, he said.

The Commission on Postal Service last year concluded that postal pay has merely been raised "to levels comparable with wages of employees in major industrial private employment." However, this comparison did not include a major hidden cost — pensions.

The commission, two of whose seven members were postal union officials, based their conclusion on a study of employees in steelmaking, auto manufacturing, transportation and communications, industries whose pay scales are higher than the service industries studied by Adie. The commission found postal pay and fringe benefits cost an average of $8.05 per hour while private pay in those industries averaged $8.04. This ignores the unfunded cost of federal pensions for government workers, which could easily add another $1.60 to $2.40 per hour to the true long-term cost of postal employment, based on recent studies by the Civil Service Commission and the General Accounting Office.

While pay for lower-wage federal workers is often higher than for comparable work in business, pay for top-level federal executives tends to be much lower.

A 1975 study found that the top lawyer in a corporation with sales over $250 million a year could expect to earn $89,000 a year in salary and bonuses. By contrast, the chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Service, whose legal rulings affected literally tens of billions of U.S. tax dollars, earned $37,800.

The Congressional Budget Office said in a report a year ago that the average pay for top federal executives would have to be raised by 40 percent to bring it to a level comparable with salaries and bonuses paid to top business executives.

The top salary paid to federal civil service executives is $47,500 a year. The 1975 study showed that large corporations then typically paid $104,000 a year to their financial vice presidents, $65,000 a year to their treasurers and controllers, $93,000 a year to their administrative vice presidents, $69,000 a year to their vice presidents for industrial relations, and $59,000 a year to their engineering vice presidents. Those rates would be higher today.

Teen mother gives birth while in coma

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — For 21-year-old Rick Goforth, the joy of being a new father is tempered by knowing that his comatose teen-age wife is still unaware she is a mother.

Instead of carefree hours with his 23-day-old daughter, Susan Michelle, Goforth spends precious moments at his wife's bedside in a hospital's intensive care unit. He is allowed to visit her twice a day for 10 minutes at a time.

Eighteen-year-old Laurie Goforth had a heart attack Dec. 18 and has not regained consciousness. She gave birth Jan. 8, but doctors said she was unaware of the event. The baby is healthy and normal.

Goforth left his job in Borger to live in a small apartment near Northwest Texas Hospital and work at an Amarillo aerosol plant. His mother-in-law is caring for the baby in Borger.

To compound his worries, Goforth learned Tuesday that the major medical insurance policy on his wife that he applied for just six days before she was stricken has been rejected.

Until this crisis, life was a joy for the high school sweethearts, married last year. The hours before the heart attack had been special. The couple had just bought a color television — their Christmas present to each other and, of course, for the expected baby.

"It had been a good day. We came home and heated up some pot pies for dinner. After we ate, Laurie and I sat on the couch and she was writing Christmas cards," recalled Goforth.

"Then, all of a sudden, Laurie screamed, 'Oh, no!' I thought at first she was kidding me, but she collapsed in my lap. I didn't know what had happened," he said.

During the 50-mile ambulance run from Borger to Amarillo, Mrs. Goforth had another attack. By the time she arrived, she had suffered severe brain damage, doctors said.

Birth contractions began Jan. 8 and 6-pound, 8-ounce Susan Michelle was born 2½ hours later.

On Dec. 12, Goforth had applied for two major medical insurance policies — one for him, the second for his wife. "The agent told me that we would be covered from the time we signed up. I got my policy back in the mail, but Laurie's never came," he said.

The American National Insurance Co. of Galveston told The Associated Press on Tuesday that it had rejected Laurie's application.

Jim Mineer, a senior vice president, said the application was rejected Jan. 26 and a letter to that effect had been mailed to Goforth, along with his initial payment.

Mineer said a letter from her family doctor showed past medical problems. He would not reveal the contents of the letter.

Mrs. Goforth's mother, Mrs. Al Butcher, said doctors had told her that her daughter had a fast heartbeat as a youngster, but she had never been treated.

Goforth said he hasn't had time to worry about the insurance.

"I just have to hope and pray that Laurie can make it. We feel that the fact that she had the baby OK was a miracle. If one miracle can happen to us, another one can, too," he said.

Brown may support tax bill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says a $2 billion bill carried by a liberal Republican is the only game in town involving property tax relief legislation this year.

"It's the only glimmer of hope left," the Democratic governor said Tuesday, apparently giving up on his own tax relief plan.

The Republican's bill, SB 1 by Sen. Peter Behr, barely cleared the Senate Monday, and Brown indicated he would support a modified version of it.

CITY OF PLEASANTON
ALAMEDA COUNTY,
CALIFORNIA
ORDINANCE NO. 842
AN ORDINANCE ADDING CHAPTER 7 TO TITLE IV (HEALTH, SAFETY, MORAL, AND GENERAL WELFARE) OF THE ORDINANCE CODE OF THE CITY OF PLEASANTON REGULATING THE DISPLAY OF SEXUALLY EXPLICIT READING MATERIAL IN COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS.

Section 4-8.15. Finding and Declarations

The City Council finds and declares that there exists in the City of Pleasanton a tendency toward a display of adult magazines and books in liquor stores, grocery markets, drug stores and other retail outlets in such a manner that children, often of tender years, are exposed to book and magazine covers depicting explicit sexual activity and showing human genitals and pubic regions in a sexually explicit manner. The City Council finds that such exposure establishes a tone in the community inconsistent with morality and good order. The Council, therefore, finds that it is in the best interest of public health, safety, and welfare to restrict the display of reading material with sexually explicit covers and to adopt the following regulations so that the adverse impacts of such material on children and the community as a whole will be kept to a minimum.

Section 4-8.21. Statutory severability. If any phrase, clause, sentence, section or provision of this article or application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect any other phrase, clause, sentence, section or provision or application of this article, which can be given effect without the invalid portion and to this end the provisions of this article are declared to be severable.

The President moves to traditional quarters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has altered his work habits, and in a way that perhaps makes him seem more presidential.

Without fanfare, Carter in recent weeks has moved his major base of operations from a small hideaway office in the White House West Wing to the larger, more ornate Oval Office that has served traditionally as the workplace of presidents.

An informant estimated Carter now spends 80 percent to 90 percent of his working time in the Oval Office, if you disregard attendance at large conferences held in the Cabinet Room or elsewhere around the White House. The president used to spend most of his time in his hideaway, reserving the Oval Office largely for receiving important visitors or for presiding at ceremonies.

After a year of shuttling between offices, which are only a couple of doors apart, Carter apparently has decided it's easier to stay put. However, he still uses his hideaway quarters for much of his private study.

The change of habits came to light after a reporter noted a stapler and letter opener on Carter's Oval Office desk.

Also on the desk was a small plate heaped with salted peanuts.

There's an explanation for the peanuts, too. It seems that Atlanta attorney Charles Kirbo, one of the president's closest unofficial advisers, makes it a practice to bring along a supply of fresh-roasted Georgia peanuts whenever he visits the White House.

Although he grew peanuts for many years, Carter never developed the habit of snacking on them. But he puts them out after Kirbo drops by with a new supply.

Henceforth Carterologists will be looking for plates of peanuts as a tipoff that Kirbo has been in town.

Washington hostesses lament the fact that many top Carter aides avoid the local cocktail party circuit. They might tear their hair if they got wind of what the Carter folks do back home in Georgia.

A couple of weekends ago, for example, press secretary Jody Powell and Frank Moore, the president's assistant for congressional liaison, took their wives to Gainesville, Ga., to — are you ready, hostesses? — judge a beauty contest.

Actually, Powell and Moore did so out of a sense of family duty. Because their wives are graduates of Gainesville's Brenau College, they agreed to join their spouses in selecting a campus queen.

After the field had been narrowed to five finalists, the judges asked the contenders to list the most important news story of 1977.

Three aspiring queens unhesitatingly cited the election of Jimmy Carter. One listed the death of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. The fifth pointed to the collapse of an earthen dam at Toccoa, Ga.

Powell's 11-year-old daughter Emily subsequently suggested to her father that the contestants weren't very bright because Carter was elected in 1976 and Humphrey died in 1978.

Meeting over city parking

LIVERMORE — A meeting will be held at 7:45 a.m. today with the Chamber of Commerce, the newly formed Downtown Property Owners Association, the city and merchants to discuss the parking situation.

The meeting will be held at the Chamber new offices, 1510 Holmes. The newly formed Downtown Property Owners Association has voiced loud disapproval of the proposed expanded parking lot and assessment district to pay for it. Other possibilities for relieving the parking problems in the downtown area will be studied at the meeting.

Museum aides needed

Volunteers are needed to assist the Amador - Livermore Valley Historical Society in bringing history exhibits to schoolchildren for "hands-on" learning.

The ALVHS museum has had to temporarily cancel its outreach program recently due to a shortage of volunteers. More than 7,000 schoolchildren last year experienced the museum's "mini" exhibits through this program.

Volunteers interested in teaching children that history can be fun should call 462-2766 for details. Training is provided by the museum.

Disco dance tomorrow

Farm speaker wins

Bart Broadman of the Livermore Future Farmers of America has won the sectional event in the FFA's 1978 Public Speaking and Creed Contest and is slated to go on to the North Coast Regional Meeting in Willits Mar. 31. Broadman chose to speak and answer questions on the proposed 160-acre limitation policy.

FFA contest Saturday

Livermore Future Farmers of America have scheduled the FFA sectional judging contest for Saturday at Livermore High School from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The contest is open to any FFA judging team in the Alameda section and Half Moon Bay area. Areas to be covered are soils, meats, horticulture, horses, records and forestry.

An awards ceremony is slated for the afternoon and the public is invited to all activities. For further information call 455-5573.

New regime

Chamber moves

How's this for the flowering of spring?

Memo to the editor:

As you know, I've always been a big booster of Groundhog Day.

It symbolizes the end of winter, a pretty big event for someone like me who had to suffer through quite a few Minnesota frosts and snowdrifts.

So it's time for my annual story about this magnificent holiday.

But instead of recounting the usual history — how groundhogs came to America with Columbus, how they dug the Holland Tunnel, how they carried the 1928 election for Herbert Hoover — I want to strike out boldly with new ideas.

Sure, I'd like to be there today in Punxatawney, Pa. All the media bigshots, from Charles Carrault to Hunter S. Thompson, no doubt will stand in front of that little gopher hole waiting to see if the nation, or at least Punxatawney, will get six more weeks of winter.

But why go East for such an important ritual when we can create one all our own, unique to California.

As a substitute for that silliness back east, I nominate press coverage of the first Japanese Plum Blossom.

They always come out in the first week in February, at least in Berkeley they do. It takes a week or two later here in the Valley. Whether that's the physical climate or the social climate differences, I'll leave to you to guess.

The annual Japanese Plum Blossoms are enough to drive a person to poetry, with those bright explosions wafting from the trees.

Now that I reread that, let's drop the last part of the sentence. Let's call those plum blossoms "messengers on the winds of life." Aw, that's bad, too.

But you get the point. We need a blossom - oogling, bloom - sniffing, poetry - writing spring ritual signifying the passing of mordant winter.

Is the Punxatawney Chamber of Commerce going to outdo our own, shouts an indignant regional collection of spring fanatics.

I say "no" in thunder...
